

It's not just paint on a Porsche,
it's an armor.

Every Porsche is a precious possession, we like to see it protected. Before the painting begins, the various sections are unitized into a strong all steel welded body. Many of the curves are molded and sculptured by hand to produce the smoothest surfaces on earth for those outerspace curves of the Porsche. To get the Porsche color you select, we dip the body into a coat of zinc phosphate for anti-rust protection, then on goes the primer coat. One that is absolutely electric. The whole car is given a positive charge. Then plunged into a vat of water and paint, charged negatively. Zap, the two are irresistibly drawn to each other. And the paint is on for life. On 3 1/2 times thicker than with the cheaper dip method. Then a wash, a sand, a re-wash, a re-prime, a dry and—only then—the final, outer coat of enamel. Sprayed on by hand. The whole thing has taken better than 3 1/2 hours and the car is wearing more than 12 pounds of paint. Before you ever sit behind the wheel, your car has gone some 40 kilometers on our test road under the guidance of a professional test driver. He and his team of mechanics make the final adjustments. Now we put the Porsche on the boat to you. Is it any wonder we can only turn out 70 a day?
